

User Interviews

Warm Up

- How often do you send or receive parcels in a month?
- What kinds of things do you usually send work, personal, products you sell?

Current Behaviour

- Walk me through the last time you sent a parcel every step.
- How did you choose the courier service you used?
- How did you know it was delivered?

Pain & Frustration

- Tell me about a time a delivery went really badly.
- What's the most stressful part of the whole process?

Expectations

- What would make you trust a new delivery service you've never used?

Workarounds

- If your usual courier wasn't available right now what would you do?

Raw Observation

Raw Observation	Core Need / Feeling
Receives 4–5 parcels/month. Sends once every 2 months.	Low frequency sender
Sends personal gifts, returning borrowed items. Things with emotional value.	Sends things that matter
Spent 2 days just finding the right box before even booking anything.	Needs help before booking starts
Chose courier based on familiarity alone. "The blue-and-yellow logo one." No...	Needs to trust before trying
I'd rather pay a little more for peace of mind than gamble on something unk...	Trust over price
Needed push notification + email + delivery photo + cousin's message to fee...	Needs certainty of safe delivery
Tracking stalled 24 hours. Called it "falling into a black hole." Felt anxiety ev...	Needs constant visibility
Vinyl record delivered to wrong building. Spent an evening going door to doo...	Needs accurate delivery
Support = automated loops + 3 day wait + useless email. "I nearly cried over...	Needs a real human when things b...
The gap between 'out for delivery' and 'delivered' is the most stressful part.	Needs constant visibility
Worried about using too little cushioning. Worried about accidentally breakin...	Needs guidance before shipping
International customs form — doesn't know which codes to use. Recipient g...	Needs simplicity in complex steps
Doesn't know if oddly shaped box is acceptable without complex measurem...	Needs guidance before shipping

Clustering / Affinity Mapping

The 3-Step Clustering Process

Clustering / Affinity Mapping

The 5 Clusters — Our Key Insights

Priority 1

Where is my parcel right now?

6 observations

- Tracking stalled 24 hours. Sobhan called it a "black hole." Felt anxiety even when parcel was fine.
- The gap between "out for delivery" and "delivered" is the most stressful moment of the whole journey.
- Parcel sat in destination city for days. Zero updates. No information at all.
- Uncertainty. When tracking stops you don't know if it's safe, delayed, or lost.
- Arjun tracks obsessively until it says Delivered. Needs second confirmation from receiver.
- Needed 4 separate confirmations before feeling certain the parcel was safe.

Priority 2

I don't trust strangers. I trust people I know.

6 observations

- Chose courier based purely on familiarity. The "blue-and-yellow logo one." No research at all.
- I'd rather pay more for peace of mind than gamble on something unknown.
- Only trusts a new service if a friend personally recommends it. Word of mouth beats any ad.
- Even buyers panic if tracking looks suspicious trust is fragile for receivers too.
- Pays more for a trusted courier when the item is important.
- Trusts a new service based on reviews and personal recommendations first.

Priority 1

Where is my parcel right now?

6 observations

- Tracking stalled 24 hours. Sobhan called it a "black hole." Felt anxiety even when parcel was fine.
- The gap between "out for delivery" and "delivered" is the most stressful moment of the whole journey.
- Parcel sat in destination city for days. Zero updates. No information at all.
- Uncertainty. When tracking stops you don't know if it's safe, delayed, or lost.
- Arjun tracks obsessively until it says Delivered. Needs second confirmation from receiver.
- Needed 4 separate confirmations before feeling certain the parcel was safe.

Priority 2

I don't trust strangers. I trust people I know.

6 observations

- Chose courier based purely on familiarity. The "blue-and-yellow logo one." No research at all.
- I'd rather pay more for peace of mind than gamble on something unknown.
- Only trusts a new service if a friend personally recommends it. Word of mouth beats any ad.
- Even buyers panic if tracking looks suspicious trust is fragile for receivers too.
- Pays more for a trusted courier when the item is important.
- Trusts a new service based on reviews and personal recommendations first.

Priority 1

Where is my parcel right now?

6 observations

- Tracking stalled 24 hours. Sobhan called it a "black hole." Felt anxiety even when parcel was fine.
- The gap between "out for delivery" and "delivered" is the most stressful moment of the whole journey.
- Parcel sat in destination city for days. Zero updates. No information at all.
- Uncertainty. When tracking stops you don't know if it's safe, delayed, or lost.
- Arjun tracks obsessively until it says Delivered. Needs second confirmation from receiver.
- Needed 4 separate confirmations before feeling certain the parcel was safe.